

LET'S TALK MONEY®

March/April 2019

Save Taxes Now or Later

As federal and state tax filing deadlines approach, you may naturally wonder how to minimize your taxes. Traditional and Roth IRAs are two options that may minimize your total tax bill for 2018 and beyond, and you can open one for tax year 2018 up to the tax filing deadline in 2019.

Traditional IRA

If you qualify by income, contributions* made to this IRA are tax-deferred. In 2018, contribute up to $5,500, indexed to inflation, and an extra $1,000 catch-up contribution if you are age 50 or older during any part of 2018. The $5,500 annual limit, incidentally, applies to all contributions made to all of your IRAs. In tax year 2019, you can contribute even more — up to $6,000, plus the catch-up contribution if you qualify. Whether they contribute before or after tax, everyone can take advantage of any IRA's tax-deferred potential earnings.

The current tax reduction can be considerable if you make a deductible contribution of $6,500 to a traditional IRA and are in the 30% combined tax bracket (state and federal taxes), saving $1,950 on your 2018 taxes. These savings add up over time and can benefit you in other areas — especially if you add the savings to, say, your 401(k) plan contributions or 529 plan college savings.

Roth IRA

In contrast, a Roth IRA does not offer a current tax deduction for contributions, so you can't reduce your 2018 tax bill by opening one. You will, however, find a number of advantages to this type of IRA account, not the least having to do with future taxes.

Like a traditional IRA, the Roth offers tax-deferred potential growth. Unlike the traditional type, the Roth doesn't mandate minimum distributions at age 70½; you don't even have to take a Roth distribution during your lifetime. The biggest advantage, however, is the tax-free nature of distributions if you are at least age 59½ and have owned the Roth IRA five years or more.

Talk to Your Professional

Your financial professional can help you decide which type of account is right for you, but one thing is certain: Both types of IRAs offer a way to minimize taxes. It's your choice whether to take advantage of this feature now or in retirement.

* <https://www.irs.gov/newsroom/irs-announces-2018-pension-plan-limitations-401k-contribution-limit-increases-to-18500-for-2018>

Karen Petrucco
Account Manager

LTM Client Marketing
125 Wolf Road, Suite 407
Albany, NY 12205

Tel: 518-870-1082
Fax: 800-720-0780
kpetrucco@ltmlclientmarketing.com
www.ltmlclientmarketing.com

I am committed to helping my clients achieve their financial goals for themselves, their families and their businesses by providing them with strategies for asset accumulation, preservation and transfer.

Standard Version

LTM Client Marketing

Partners in your marketing success

The sender and LTM Client Marketing Inc. are unrelated. This publication was prepared for the publication's provider by LTM Client Marketing Inc., an unrelated third party. Articles are not written or produced by the named representative.

2018 Tax Changes: Coming and Going

As the filing deadline nears for your 2018 federal tax return, it may be helpful to brush up on changes that can affect how much you pay. Some of the changes cited below are subject to income limits and other qualifications, so check with your tax professional to learn about these and other changes to your 2018 return. Also beware that many individual changes will expire in 2026.

More Tax Breaks

The standard deduction increased significantly to $12,000 for individuals, $24,000 for couples filing jointly and $18,000 for heads of households. Income brackets at which you pay ordinary and capital gains tax also increased significantly, as did the threshold at which taxpayers must pay the Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT). Your children under age 18 may net you a $2,000 child tax credit, if you qualify by income.

The estate tax exemption* more than doubled to $11.18 million for single taxpayers and $22.36 million for couples filing jointly. You can deduct charitable contributions of up to 60% of your adjusted gross income, and inflation indexing boosts the annual gift tax exclusion to $15,000 per taxpayer per recipient. The limit on qualifying income for taking itemized deductions also disappears in 2018.

Fewer Tax Breaks

A combined limit of $10,000 for state and property tax deductions is new to 2018, which taxpayers in highly taxed states will notice. The mortgage cap on the amount of all home loan interest you can deduct is $750,000, down from $1 million. Interest on home equity loans and second mortgages is deductible only for money used for home improvements. Deductions for personal exemptions, moving expenses (service members exempt), unreimbursed job expenses, and casualty and theft losses outside a federal disaster area are also history.

Business: Give and Take

Corporate income taxes decreased, and owners of S corporations and other business entities may see taxes reduced through a special pass-through income tax provision. Section 179 expensing limits doubled to $1 million with a $2.5 million phase-out, and certain equipment and bonuses may be 100% depreciated in the year the expense is incurred.

However, employee transportation benefits are no longer deductible. Neither are entertainment expenses. Larger businesses will also see the end of full interest expensing, which is now limited to any business interest income plus 30% of the business' adjusted taxable income.

Look Ahead

Alimony payments received according to agreements created or modified after 2018 will no longer be taxable.** You may deduct unreimbursed medical expenses exceeding 7.5% of adjusted gross income. If you don't have a qualified health insurance plan, you may owe a tax penalty of $695 per adult or 2.5% of household income, whichever is higher, in 2018. The penalty expires in 2019.

Still Time

Income qualification and contribution limits, which are indexed to inflation, increased for a variety of qualified retirement plans and you still have time to set up and contribute to a traditional IRA before your tax filing deadline. You may also contribute to a Roth IRA until that date. While a Roth IRA doesn't offer tax-deferred contributions, its growth and eventual distributions (when meeting certain terms) are tax-free.***

* <https://www.irs.gov/businesses/small-businesses-self-employed/whats-new-estate-and-gift-tax>

** <https://www.irs.gov/taxtopics/tc452>

*** Distributions from traditional IRAs and employer sponsored retirement plans are taxed as ordinary income and, if taken prior to reaching age 59 1/2, may be subject to an additional 10% IRS tax penalty.

Spring-Clean Your Finances

Now is not only a good time to spring-clean your house, but to take care of financial matters you may have put off. Consider the following:

Get Your Act Together – If you have receipts here, statements there and insurance documents who knows where, start your spring cleaning by organizing them and streamlining your recordkeeping. The accompanying article lists how long you should keep certain tax records, but you can also use it as a guide to reduce other financial records, including utility statements and most credit card receipts.

Document the Important Stuff – This begins with a will so that your loved ones have direction when you can't give it. Talk to an attorney to draw up a will and, while you're at it, a healthcare proxy and powers of attorney.

Coordinate Your Insurance – Consider putting all of your insurance documents in one place so that loved ones can find the information needed to make a claim. Include policy and contact information not only for individual life, health and property/casualty insurance, but also for any benefits you may buy through work, such as disability income insurance.

While you're at it, talk with your insurance professional to make sure you're covered appropriately and beneficiary designations are current.

Organize Your Investment Information – Leave information about your various investments and retirement accounts in an accessible place for loved ones to find. Use technology to organize these documents. And work with a financial professional to help you stay on track with your investing goals.

Get Organized!

Organizing your financial records can help you find what you need this tax season. Begin by understanding how long you need to keep the following records, courtesy of the IRS:

- Three years for most records if you have reported all your income.
- Four years for employment tax records.
- Six years if you under-report at least 25% of your income.

- Seven years if you filed a claim for worthless securities or bad debt.
- Indefinitely for years when you didn't file a tax return or filed a fraudulent one.

Five Credit(able) Steps to a Higher Credit Score

Your credit score is often the driver when looking for the best deal on a credit card or auto loan. Here are some steps to help increase your credit score:

1. Check your credit scores. Get a free credit report every year from Equifax, Experian and TransUnion. Examine each for errors.

2. Shrink your debt. You may want to start by paying off your credit card with the highest interest. This is one step to a better income-to-debt ratio and a better credit score.

3. Expand your income. You might accomplish this step with a part-time job, overtime or freelancing.

4. Automate your savings. Lower debt and more income means you can save more for big goals, including retirement. Make your IRA and 401(k) plan contributions automatic.

5. Review as needed. Once you create a sparkling credit profile, check regularly to keep it that way.

Keeping Your Retirement on Track

Has life thrown you a curveball and knocked your retirement expectations off track? With the help of a financial professional, you may be able to find alternatives to most financial setbacks and get back on track. Here are some post-retirement challenges and their potential solutions.

Home Repairs

You need a new roof or heating system and you don't have the money budgeted for it. Now you have to withdraw more from your retirement funds than anticipated. While establishing an emergency fund equal to a few months of expenses won't help you this time around, it may help you the next time you incur a large, unexpected expense.

Vacation Envy

If you budget to the penny because you lack disposable income, it can be next to impossible to find the money to take a vacation. You might consider going away by car instead of air or vacationing with family and friends when they make the offer. But if you really can't find the money for a vacation, or for an emergency fund for that matter, consider getting a part-time or temporary job.

Health Insurance

Meanwhile, prepare where you can. When a costly illness is your biggest financial risk, it pays to have the right health insurance. Work with an insurance professional to make sure you not only have basic Medicare, but other insurance you need to help defray health care costs, resulting in lower out-of-pocket expenses.

Taxes

During this tax season, consider how an increase in your tax rate could affect your retirement income. One way to deal with this risk is to convert some 401(k) plan or traditional IRA money into a Roth IRA.* You may pay income tax on the converted amount, but Roth distributions are then tax-free.

There's More

Other risks to your retirement security include withdrawing too much or too little — with the latter resulting in penalties for not taking required minimum distributions — investing too aggressively or conservatively, and outliving your retirement income. Your financial professional can suggest investments to help alleviate these concerns.

* Converting from a traditional IRA to a Roth IRA is a taxable event. A Roth IRA offers tax free withdrawals on taxable contributions. To qualify for the tax-free and penalty-free withdrawal of earnings, a Roth IRA must be in place for at least five tax years, and the distribution must take place after age 59 ½ or due to death, disability, or a first time home purchase (up to a $10,000 lifetime maximum). Depending on state law, Roth IRA distributions may be subject to state taxes.

This publication is not intended as legal or tax advice. All individuals, including those involved in the estate planning process, are advised to meet with their tax and legal professionals. The individual sponsoring this newsletter will work with your tax and legal advisors to help select appropriate product solutions. We do not endorse or guarantee the content or services of any website mentioned in this newsletter. We encourage you to review the privacy policy of each website you visit. Limitations, restrictions and other rules and regulations apply to many of the financial and insurance products and concepts presented in this newsletter, and they may differ according to individual situations. The publisher and individual sponsor do not assume liability for financial decisions based on the newsletter's contents. Great care has been taken to ensure the accuracy of the newsletter copy at press time; however, markets and tax information can change suddenly. Whole or partial reproduction of Let's Talk Money® without the written permission of the publisher is forbidden.

©LTM Client Marketing Inc., 2019

We Value Your Input...

Your feedback is very important to us. If you have any questions about any of the subjects covered here, or suggestions for future issues, please don't hesitate to call. You'll find our number on the front of this newsletter. It's always a pleasure to hear from you.

ADVERTISING REGULATION DEPARTMENT REVIEW LETTER

November 8, 2018

Reference: FR2018-1010-0149/E

Org Id: 8408

1. 2019 LTM Mar-Apr Standard
Rule: FIN 2210
5 Pages

The communication submitted appears consistent with applicable standards.

Reviewed by,

Wayne L. Louviere
Manager

aec

NOTE: We assume that your filed communication doesn't omit or misstate any fact, nor does it offer an opinion without reasonable basis. While you may say that the communication was "reviewed by FINRA" or "FINRA reviewed," you may not say that we approved it.*

Please send any communications related to filing reviews to this Department through the Advertising Regulation Electronic Filing (AREF) system or by facsimile or hard copy mail service. We request that you do not send documents or other communications via email.